Schools are required to teach British values as part of their responsibility for promoting the Spiritual, Moral, Social and Cultural (SMSC) development of their pupils. In doing this they can also show that they are 'actively promoting fundamental British Values.'

At the heart of these values, lie good relationships in which teachers and students work together towards common goals. Much work was already in place to support and embed these values and it is our aim to ensure we effectively share this with pupils, staff, governors and the wider community. These values are integral to our school vision and ethos and are reinforced regularly. The British Values are defined as:

- Democracy
- The rule of law
- Individual liberty
- Mutual respect

Tolerance of those with different faiths and beliefs.

AIMS

Democracy	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• To understand and respect the democratic process• To teach pupils how they can influence decision-making through the democratic process• To promote pupil voice in the decision making process and help pupils to express their views• To support children/young people to debate and defend a point of view• To understand the value of team work.

Tolerance of those with different faiths and beliefs	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To teach pupils to challenge prejudicial or discriminatory behaviour • To promote respect, understanding, acceptance and celebration of individual differences and a diverse society. • To develop critical personal thinking skills • To challenge stereotypes

British Values are developed across the curriculum in all classes and through a variety of whole school activities:

- Positive relationships with adults in school and in the wider community
- Student voice/council contributing to decisions
- Assemblies focussing on a different value every other week
- Collective Worship
- Display in classrooms, identifying how children/young people have demonstrated their understanding of British values
- Behaviour for learning policy
- Participation in community events
- Charity drives
